EDITOR'S NOTE

The New Year has set in and with it new beginnings and learning experiences! MGNCRE wishes one and all a Happy New Year 2019! Time is premium and one who understands its value will always stand to gain. MGNCRE is at the forefront of various path breaking activities including propelling Nai Talim and Experiential Learning activities and curriculum; conducting workshops, Faculty Development Programmes, Master Trainers' Development Programmes; making waves in swachhta initiatives through its academic publications; conducting faculty induction programmes at its Faculty Development Centre; and several other activities. Somewhere down the road, our organization changed its name from National Council of Rural Institutes (NCRI) to Mahatma Gandhi National Council of Rural Education(MGNCRE).

Every tomorrow is an outcome of what we do today. There are motivations and accelerators for growth along with thoughts to ponder upon all the way. A positive vision triggers a positive action. To translate the vision into reality is the challenge facing us today. A compelling vision, a comprehensive plan, relentless implementation, and a team of committed people working together are our strongholds. Resilience and striving for excellence in all that we do help us in accomplishing our goals with an enduring work ethic. What we contribute can fundamentally change the paradigm or way of thinking. Gigantic aspirations, humility in execution, innovative approaches – contributing every day, every week, every month – this is what symbolizes MGNCRE.

MHRD has congratulated MGNCRE on its diverse and unique accomplishments including its contribution in Rural Management Education and for launching Swachhta related curriculum and manuals. MGNCRE has prepared model curriculum for Rural Communication, Rural Social Work, Rural Teacher Education, Rural Entrepreneurship, and Rural Community Engagement. The larger vision is to enable Higher Educational Institutes (HEIs) to recognise, promote and institutionalise rural community engagement as a field of study. It will be realised through trained professional scholars and educators who will actively pursue rural community engagement in HEIs. In the process, engagement with the community will cease to be viewed as an 'extra-curricular activity' and emerge as a 'scholarly pursuit' of higher education curriculum. The prime goal of MGNCRE is to reach out to 650000 villages in India.

Shri Prakash Javadekar, stressing on holistic education observes "Only theoretical knowledge is not education. Education is when we become the representatives or soldiers of India by going to the villagers and helping them to solve their problems. We will see all-round development or holistic progress if we follow these steps."

We must make the connection between needs of the society and system of education to address problems in education, health and environment. We should be able to generate graduates with employable skills. Thirty students did their internship at MGNCRE in May. They conducted Participatory Rural Appraisal (PRA) visits to five villages and came up with a multiplicity of interesting findings. As we move towards more integrated development, and more focused approaches we also understand the organizational boundaries and professional challenges we face. We heartily appreciate the work everyone is doing and acknowledge the effort people make every single day. Everyone has something to offer. To contribute to society is to make the world a better place to live!

Chairman, MGNCRE

The New Year brings with it new goals and challenges. Happy New Year 2019 to one and all! Continuing the good work, MGNCRE is proud to flaunt its list of achievements and looks forward to the tasks ahead. Ministry of HRD encourages institutions to make courses on rural community engagement a part of higher education system in India. Several HEIs already have specialized departments to offer academic programmes on rural development including rural technology and rural management. Students, irrespective of their academic bearings, need to be provided opportunities to have a practical understanding of the problems and challenges faced by the rural masses across India so that they become socially inclined. UGC and AICTE have already issued directives to make rural engagement courses part of academic curriculum. MGNCRE has made great strides in the field of rural engagement – academically and socially. The biggest challenge is the sustainability of developmental efforts. MGNCRE’s interventions in Nai Talim, work education, experiential learning - are platforms for development of employable skills in students. Self-reliant communities can become torchbearers of their own development. The National Consultative Workshop on Community Engagement with State NSS Officers is a welcome development and bodes good for curriculum development in rural engagement. I look forward to the already etched out strategic agenda of MGNCRE and its fulfilment in the year ahead!
